

HUMANE & FRIENDLY SOCIETY CEMETERY DIGITAL MAPPING PROJECT

Charleston Cemetery Historic District April-June 2025

Acknowledgments

This project was completed by the Preservation Society of Charleston (PSC) in partnership with the Avery Reserach Center for African American History and Culture in 2025.

The final deliverables of the project were 1) a digital map in ArcGIS Survey123, 2) a paper map of the cemetery with each burial labeled with a number, 3) a corresponding spreadsheets of data (alphabetically and numerically organized), and 4) the following report with project analytics and photographs from the project.

Students and volunteers digitally map burial markers.

R.W. Smith, Daron Calhoun, and Renée Atkins digitally mapping burial markers inside a family coping.

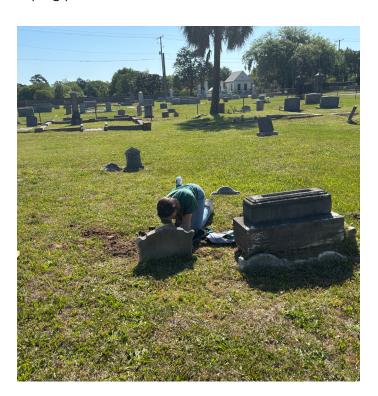

The Richard H. Gilmore burial marker has weathering and biogrowth, making it difficult to read.

Descendant Julia-Ellen Craft Davis clips overgrown grass to reveal a sunken headstone.

Madison Lee documents burials in a family coping plot.

Flannery Antinoro digs around a headstone that has sunk into the ground to ascertain the name of the person interred.

Veer Mehta brushes dirt off a headstone that was previously lying face down.

Veer Mehta lifts a stone that had broken and fallen.
